Anesthesia and Dental Treatment Release

Client Name: _____

Patient: _____

Like you, our greatest concern is the well being of your pet. Your pet will receive general anesthesia today, in order to perform its dental procedure. Before putting your pet under anesthesia, we will perform a full physical examination; however, some health conditions may not be detectable by physical exam only. To maximize patient safety and help alert the doctor to the presence of potential health problems, we recommend a pre-anesthetic blood test be performed on your pet prior to undergoing anesthesia. These tests are similar to those your own physician would run were you to undergo anesthesia. In addition, the results of these tests may be useful later to develop faster, more accurate diagnoses and treatments in the event that your pet's health changes.
